JEFFERSON UNION HIGH SCHOOL BOARD ASK BOND ISSUE

* * * * * *

IMPERATIVE NEED IS STRESSED FOR IMPROVEMENTS AT SCHOOL

Citizens Hear Plans For Aid From Instructors So As To Meet State Law

On Tuesday night, February 11, a gathering of many prominent citizens of the community occured at the Jefferson Union High School for the purpose of discussing the proposed election for additional classrooms and a gymnasium for the high school.

The president of the Board of Education, Dr. Callsen, presented the proposition to the group and explained that one of the principal reasons for bringing up the issue at this time was that immediate action was necessary if any financial assistance from the federal government PWA funds was expected. He particularly stressed that class rooms and gymnasium only would be constructed from district funds and that if the government granted their request for financial aid a swimimng pool would also be provided.

Faculty members of the physical education department were then called on to explain the urgent need for more adequate locker facilities and a gymnasium.

Mr. Biggs explained that physical education is a daily required subject by the state for every student enrolled and that under present conditions the high school faculty was unable to comply with state law. The extremely cramped quarters now provided are inadequate for present needs and also unsanitary.

Miss Young discussed the objectives of physical education as listed by the state physical education department and explained how utterly impossible it was to attempt such a

FAMOUS HORSES ARE COMING TO SPRING MEETING

Owner Of Top Row Looking For Farm To Breed His Own Runners Near Tanforan.

Indications are bright for the shipment of a number of topnotch performers from Santa Anita to Tanforan for the period of sport to open at the home course Saturday, March 7. It is considered a certainty that Top Row, Time Supply, Head Play and others will be put on the cars at the southern track for the short journey to San Mateo county.

Right now Time Supply, a stallion bred by Willis Sharpe Kilmer, is looming as a strong contender in the Santa Anita Handicap, to be renewed Washington's birthday. The good son of Time Maker, with 116 pounds on his back, won easily last Saturday down south in fast time in a handicap at nine furlongs. Time Supply will tote 114 pounds in the Santa Anita, which is at 10 furlongs.

Probably the "pet" of the fans up here, however, is the sterling Top Row, owned by Bert Baroni, formerly of Reno. Top Row, hardly more than a pony in size, is possessed of a high turn of speed and can carry it over a distance of ground in the best of company. The aptly named son of Peanuts and Too High did not develop until rather late, but he has been of real class in the last two seasons. On several occasions, with a pull in the weights, the little fel-

PROVE RIGHT TO FAST COMPANY

Daly City Tanforan baseball team definitely proved to some 5,000 fans at Seals Stadium last Sunday that they are equal to any semipro baseball team in northern California, by holding the strong Regal Amber Beer nine, first half champions of the Golden Gate Valley League, to a 4 to 4 tie on the James J. Nealon Mutual Benefit Fund game program.

The Daly City aggregation swept all over their foes, outhitting them, 15 to 4, and outplaying them in every department of the game.

Creighton Davies, sensational young right-handed pitcher of the Tanforans, who reports to Cincinnati, held the beer men to four bingles and struck out 11 batters. He also collected three hits out of four trips to the plate.

Palmini and Petrocchi, third baseman and right fielder, respectively, of the Tansforans, connected for seven of 16 hits. Palmini hit four for five and Petrocchi three for four.

KING GEORGE ENJOYED TRIPS TO NURSERY

By J. W. MARCHBANK

We read that the late King George V was a better judge of horses than his father, King Edward VII. That despite the fact King Edward had far more luck on the turf than King George. When still Prince of Wales, the brothers Persimmon and Diamond Jubilee won the Epsom Derby in the colors of the future ruler and Minoru scored for him after he had ascended the throne.

The authority for the broad assertion of the keen insight into horseflesh on the part of King George is no less than the late Richard Marsh, who trained for both monarchs. The late king had a fondness for all animals and horses in particular, and, as every one knows, that is a good foundation for deep appreciation.

It was the custom of King George whenever in residence at Sandringham to go around the stud after lunch on Sunday. He would go from box to box with a basket of carrots, which he fed to the mares and young stock.

Trainer Marsh declared without qualification that King George had a thorough knowledge of the breed known as the thoroughbred. Marsh remarked to the king one day:

"I am afraid your Majesty will think I am a long time in bringing out the two year olds."

The King made this wise observation in reply:

"Never hurry a horse for me, Marsh. When you tell me that it is ready to run I shall be quite satisfied. I would much sooner have a nice three year old than a two year old."

The famous English trainer tells all these things in his book, "A Trainer for Two Kings."

The King's favorite horse, Limelight, which won the Hardwicke Stakes at Ascot, was retired two years ago and some of the progency may be expected to be racing before long.

THE PEOPLE SHOULD BE GIVEN VOICE IN THEIR GOVERNMENT

Every Obstacle Possible Is Thrown In Way Of Bringing Civil Service Ordinance To Vote Of People.

Again has the intelligence of the citizens to decide for themselves been challenged!

Whether or not we believe in the merits of the form of civil service here under discussion, this challenge should be met with a rebuke at the polls.

We do not believe our citizens will much longer continue to supinely submit to such displays of brazen effrontery. We think they will "do something about it."

During the week there were filed with the city clerk of Daly City referendum petitions requesting that the recently enacted city Civil Service Ordinance be placed on the ballot, so as to permit the voters of the community to express approval or disapproval of the proposed measure.

The circulation of these petitions had scarcely been begun when members of certain departments of the city who are proposed to be placed under civil service by this law began hysterically by questionable propaganda an attempt to circumvent the effort to bring this matter to a vote.

One of these insidious attacks consisted in the circulation by city employes of cards containing the following subject matter:

"I, the undersigned qualified elector of Daly City, California, hereby direct you, B. C. Ross, City Clerk of said city, to withdraw my name from the petition for a referendum vote on the ordinance for civil service in Daly City, which is Ordinance No. 199, entitled 'An Ordinance of the City of not be present and wishing the Vets a good time.

YOUNG DEMOCRATS ARE PROGRESSIVE

Making Plans For The Organization Of Many New Clubs

The Young Democrats of San Mateo County held their regular executive committee meeting on Tuesday evening of this week at Benjamin Franklin Hotel, San Mateo. The meeting was well attended and many constructive suggestions were offered and will be followed in the club affairs.

A committee has been appointed to arrange for a membership drive dinner during the month of March at a place to be designated at the next meeting. The membership is showing a sustained and steady growth, but with the registration nearing the half way mark more effort will be made to sign up the Young Democrats, on whose shoulders a great deal of the coming campaign will fall.

It is expected that within the next three or four weeks that clubs will be instituted in all the cities in the county and that active work will be begun to formulate a program that is constructive in its work. With the leadership of President Roosevelt the Young Democrats can and will follow the precepts of the party and continue the noble work of the administration. Other columns of this paper will describe fully just what the administration is doing for San Mateo County, and it is well to follow the publicity and realize the magnitude of the work to be started in various parts of the county within the next few weeks.

It being the sixth anniversary of the founding of Crocker Unit, a beautiful birthday cake was presented by Past President Mrs. Walker, and the history of the Unit was given by the Past presidents Mrs. Julia V. Jordan, Mrs. Gertrude Walker and Mrs. Nora Clifton. Mrs. Ivy Alexander, the first president, and Mrs. Ethel Bolger, the third president, were unable to be present. A history of the old Crocker-Pershing P. T. A. was given by Mrs. Lillian G. Landini, who is one of the few charter members of the original association left in Crocker tract.

tion, Employment, Classification, Advancement, Suspension, Discharge and Retirement of Appointive Officers and Employees of said City.'"

Then follow lines for signatures of petitioner and witness.

Numerous persons who had signed the petition were approached by these employes and given cards and importuned in various ways to sign them and deliver to the city clerk.

There were also distributed copies of a circular purported to have been signed by the members of the Daly City Fire Department, with the same purpose in view; that is, to thwart the will of the people.

Some of this misleading propaganda contained this statement:

"Since we are already under civil service, what can be the purpose of those who are active in this movement (it is assumed to mean those circulating the petitions) and those who have gone to the expense of having petitions prepared and circulated? Isn't it merely an attempt to place us back where we have been for years?"

How come! Since when have the members of the Daly City Fire Department been placed under civil service? Our guess is they are still "back where we have been for years."

Another paragraph of this circular contains this ridiculous statement:

"We all feel that our organization should not be expected to engage in local politics. The ordinance provides just that and even goes a step further and prevents us from taking any active part in local political campaigns."

And the first thing they do is to engage in local politics by attempting to defeat, by specious pleas, the effort of reputable citizens to bring the ordinance complained of to a vote of the people..

Maybe our understanding of "doing politics" is a bit hazy, but we think not. The efforts of city employes looks to the average observer as the rankest kind of "political activity."

This is the second time within a few months that the necessity has arisen to invoke the referendum here so as to allow the people, who are the real governmental body, to have their say about matters.

If this ordinance is so desirable, why wait till it is in effect before making rules for its administration and designating the cost to the taxpayers. No one knows what that cost may finally be.

And again, why attempt to defeat an effort to bring the whole matter to a vote of the qualified electors and insist on delegating such an important function to a few men.

The chief of one of our city departments imparted the startling information that the ordinance could not legally be sent to a referendum vote.

One of the members of the city council asked the question, "Why should the people be allowed to vote on this ordinance?"

The ordinance in question (whatever its number may be) has been passed by the council and ordered to print on two separate dates within a month by a vote of four to one.

Councilman Fahey was the only member of the council who insisted that the matter be sent to the ballot for decision by the electors. He said he thought the people had a right to a voice in their government.

WOODROW WILSON VISTA GRANDE P. T. A.

The executive board of Woodrow Wilson Vista Grande P.-T. A. held a meeting on Tuesday afternoon. President Pearl Jones presided.

The program was completed for Founders' Day, which will be given next Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Woodrow Wilson school. Everyone is cordially invited to attend. Mrs. Fannie Kanter, as chairman, assisted by Mrs. Edith Barker and Mrs. Eva Page, have prepared a very interesting program, including a talk by Mrs. E. T. Bartlett, national chairman for home reading, and the Candle Lighting Ceremony.

Mrs. Groenstein was appointed character education chairman to finish the term.

A request is being made for a youth size wheel chair to aid a crippled boy to go to school. Any information may be sent to Mrs. Pearl Jones, 368 Vista Grande avenue, Daly City.

CAR STOLEN

Harry Harrison of Evergreen avenue had his automobile stolen Sunday afternoon while visiting friends on Ocean avenue in San Fracisco.

WINE AND DINE AND ENJOY GOOD TIME IN GENERAL

Veteran Firemen's Association Of Daly City Held Annual Banquet On Saturday Evening Last.

and Scotty Butterworth which certainly kept the Vets laughing.

But the big surprise was when a couple came to ask Judge W. H. Clay to marry them. Judge Clay being present at the banquet gave a nice little talk, then performed the marriage ceremony, which was witnessed by all present and you could hear a pin drop when Judge Clay made this happy couple husband and wife. The principals were Frances Gandolfo of Redwood City and Miss Leon Schell of San Francisco. This was something unusual at a Veteran Firemens Dinner and all present wished the couple a happy wedded life.

Just before the ceremony Judge Clay had given the Vets association an enlightening talk. Comrade P. Selmi did the pinch hitting for Comrade Chaplan H. H. Smith, who could not be present on account of illness. Mr. Selmi gave a wonderful eulogy to the organizer of the association.

Roll was then called. A minute's silence was held for those Comrades who have passed on who were Dr. R. R. Castle, Laurent Lombard, Harry Hutchins, Jack Meade, Edward H. O'Conner, Angelo Selmi, John Osion, John Viotti and J. J. Kennedy. After reading of the roll Comrade H. Anderson sang "Taps."

Toastmaster Rickman then presented a bouquet to Comrade F. Hansen, this being donated by Comrade Past Captain P. Dormay's wife, Mrs. Dormay, which Past President F. Hansen received with a nice little speech. The recipient happily presented the bouquet to the newly made bride. Comrade H. Sunderman was called on and made a nice talk for the association, he being a Veteran Fireman and a Councilman of Daly City.

Chairman Comrade H. W. A. Rickman then called on Robert McCaughan, instructor for the first aid service, he having taught the members of the first aid unit in the Fire Department of Daly City. His talk was on the social body of the firemen in general.

Comrade Toastmaster told all present to have a good time and eat and drink as much as they liked. A cake with ten candles was placed in front of the toastmaster, which was presented by Mrs. Rickman and Miss Rickman. The toastmaster, Comrade Rickman, did not know where it came from until he lifted the cake and found in the envelope the name of his wife and daughter. It was a great surprise.

It was pleasant to see so many of the old timers get together and fight all past fires over again.

The banquet was well served and greatly enjoyed.

A past president badge was presented to the outgoing president, Comrade G. Schenk.

Our good editor came in late, but we all enjoyed his presence; also that of Councilman Fahey.

Comrade J. Fero then suggested that Station No. 3 give the Veterans their salute. The toastmaster then called on Comrade Lang to lead the salute, which was joined in by all.

All went home voting the affair one of the best they had ever attended and commenting members of the arrangements committee for their efficiency.

Former President Hoover recently bought another large farm in California, and proudly showed it to his old friend, General Frank T. Hines, who visited him recently. The general looked it over admiringly, but joked his former chief, saying: "I'll bet you bought it just to get some AAA money."

The Man Who Knows

Whether the Remedy You are taking for Headaches, Neuralgia or Rheumatism Pains is SAFE is Your Doctor. Ask Him

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it — in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains . . . and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store — simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

REIGN OF DICTATORS ALMOST EXTINCT

The United States Supreme Court this week granted a permanent injunction to nine appellees from the state of Louisiana which in effect outlaws the vicious measure passed in that state taxing newspapers.

This law was personally conducted through the Legislature of Louisiana by the late Huey Long, although he was not at the time a member of that body.

In this connection it is significant to note that in almost every instance the attempt of any dictator to thwart the will of the people eventually comes to naught.

The reign of legislative dictators and their puppets, or "Yes Men," is rapidly approaching oblivion in all state, county, municipal or other political subdivisions.

A legislative oligarchy is and always has been a menace and subversive to the rights of the common people.

The right of the electors to have a say in the conduct of their government has on numerous occasions been held to be paramount to the rule of the few.

A man may, in his own mind and opinion, believe himself to be invincible and subject to no restraint by his constituents after elevation to office; but sooner or later "the props are kicked from under him," and he is shorn of his authority of self-imposed dictatorship.

The Supreme Court or any other tribunal does not look with kindly eye on attempts of this kind to muzzle those who will not do the bidding of public officials when, in their judgment, the people believe these officials to be "off on the wrong foot."

The official servant who cannot see "eye to eye" with those who elevate him to an honored position is a small asset to any community. And any of his colleagues on any legislative or administrative body who fail to think for themselves and are led by the dictates of the alleged ruling power are of no avail in serving the welfare of the citizenry at large.

And usually the experiments of such a group prove costly to the taxpayers.

Therefore all matters vitally affecting the welfare of a community should be submitted to the people for dissemination and final decision.

Any contemplated radical and perhaps costly change in the administration of the affairs of any community should be submitted to the voters without compelling them to resort to petitions to bring the matter to a referendum.

DALY CITY ROD AND GUN CLUB

(By "Bill" Grantham)

Since the last meeting of the Daly City Rod and Gun Club quite a few members have been out on the water.

Les Volkman, with two stripers, 19 and 19½ pounds, was high man; Angelo Olcesi, 15¾ pounds; Harold Vareng, 13 and 6 pounds, and Otto Schram, a 13½-pounder. All caught trolling around Red Rock. Steelhead were hitting last Sunday as this tale will testify. Bill Buck flew his plane and five guests, including our own vice president, Ed Moore, to the Garcia. Limits from 6 to 17 pounds were taken by all. Some steelhead fishing. Many others took limits in the same pools. Good old Garcia! The striped bass were not where they should be last week-end, so there were none caught to speak of. An orchid to the Walton that can discover where they go on Sundays.

Our Pedro Point fishing pier project has started a kettle boiling. It appears as if there will be some opposition to the idea. Quite a few interesting fish and game places were discussed at the last State Council, which will be reported by our delegates present at the meeting.

Look for improvement in the striper fishing this week-end, if the present storms clear in time. Moon and tides appear O.K. Bring your candidates to the next meeting, Friday, February 21. Our membership is fast nearing the quota.

ENTERTAINS CARD CLUB MEMBERS

Mrs. Agnes Wood of Mission Circle entertained the members of her card club at luncheon, Thursday of last week.

After a tempting luncheon Dutch whist was enjoyed by the following women: Mesdames Cora Ray, Mattie Smith, Grace Hill, Lottie Lovier, Anna Welch, Marie Galletta and Agnes Wood.

Prizes were awarded to Mesdames L. Lovier, C. Ray and M. Galletta.

"RED SALUTE" LIVELY COMEDY

If you're in the movie market for a smart-paced, sparkling comedy, chock full of the season's brightest dialogue and heartiest laughs, hie yourself down to the Daly City Theater—on Sunday and Monday, February 16 and 17.

For upon its screen unreeled for the first time last night "Red Salute," starring Barbara Stanwyck, Robert Young lending chief support.

"Red Salute" gives Barbara her first opportunity to doff the familiar garments of tragedy as a pretty, modern co-ed, blessed with a quick tongue, a venturesome spirit and a rollicking sense of fun.

Barbara proves herself an admirable comedienne and Robert Young is swell as the holidaying private who gets himself into the most unexpected jams because he's such an obliging soul. The uke-strumming Edwards and Ruth Donnelly make a grand new comedy team, and Hardie Albright as the agitator, Gordon Jones, who made an auspicious debut in "Let 'Em Have It," and Paul Stanton also lend admirable support.

Sidney Lanfield directed "Red Salute" for release through United Artists and his skillful touch is evident in every scene. "Red Salute" is swell entertainment and, as such, we salute it!

Also "Nevada," with Buster Crabbe and Kathleen Burke. Popeye in "Vim, Vigor and Vitality."

Paul's amateur show—Sunday.

RELIGION IN THE NEWS

(By Rev. Miles Dawson)

At the annual business meeting of the Metropolitan Tabernacle, London, on February 18, 1873, Charles Hadden Spurgeon, the great preacher, reported that religious leaders in America had made him a surprising offer. He tells of it—they offer "Mr. Spurgeon $25,000 for 25 lectures in that country, at $1,000 each, and further arrangements can be made for 100 lectures. Although the remuneration offered is very far beyond anything our beloved people are likely to give us, we prefer to have the gospel according to our Lord's words preached freely, rather than to use the Lord's time for earning money for our own purse." A sense of true Puritan spirit is seen in these words. Spurgeon, who swayed the world with his mighty ministry, had apparently caught the vision and spirit of Him, who "had not where to lay his head."

Again, in 1876, an American group offered Mr. Spurgeon "a thousand dollars in gold for every lecture delivered in America," and promised to "pay all your expenses to and from your home." In answer, Mr. Spurgeon's letter read": * * * and as I said to you before, I am not a lecturer, and, if I could come, I would not receive money for preaching." This unselfish attitude had much to do with the mighty influence of this Godly man, who ministered to thousands at every service he conducted.

His influence is still realized today, but his unselfish spirit is not witnessed in every American pulpit. His simple, Biblical gospel is as effective today, but not evidenced in every American pulpit. It may be summed up in the words of the hymn:

"Could my tears for ever flow,
Could my zeal no languor know,
All for sin could not atone:
Thou must save, and thou alone."

In Bonfield, Ont., the 180 families of the town average 10 children to the family, the largest having 20.

WEEKLY BULLETIN

FIRE PREVENTION

By Chief A. P. Chesney

It is usually heedless smokers who are at fault, because they are continually striking matches and discarding them, as well as their burning tobacco, without a thought as to where the firebrands may drop. Such individuals have been responsible for many terrible fires in which heavy losses of life has occurred. Notable examples are a shirtwaist factory in New York City, wherein 145 lives were sacrificed; a hotel holocaust, in the same city, which caused 45 deaths, and a Binghamton (N. Y.) lives were sacrificed; a hotel holocaust, in the same city, which caused 45 deaths, and a Binghamton (N. Y.) clothing factory fire, in which there were 35 deaths.

Probably the most expensive cigarette on record was the one that caused a two million dollar warehouse fire in Jersey City, N. J., during the late war. In this instance two careless workmen violated the "no smoking" regulation, although they were handling quantities of chlorate of potash and knew it was explosive.

As a consequence four storage buildings were destroyed, and in addition several neighboring properties, including 20 railroad locomotives and hundreds of loaded freight cars. More on habit factor next week.

MATRON HONORED WITH STORK SHOWER

The members of Old Glory Auxiliary tendered Mrs. Elsie Lewis of Templeton avenue a stork shower at the home of Mrs. Ethel Dorn of Risel street, Friday evening of last week.

Pink sweet peas were the table center; pink and blue favors and pink and blue candles made the table a delight to behold.

After the guest of honor arrived and greetings were exchanged the hostess presented her a clothes basket trimmed in pink and blue brimming over with packages for the welcome little stranger.

Over an hour was spent in unwrapping dainty packages laden with handsome and useful gifts. At a late hour a tasty buffet supper was served to about 35 members and friends.

It was an evening that will linger long in the memory of the guest of honor.

MAKE SURE YOU ARE REGISTERED

March 26 is the dead line for registration. When the zero hour strikes you will be a political cipher unless you have done the necessary civic chore which takes but a moment of your time, and qualifies you to vote at the coming elections.

Somewhere near your office, or your home, is a convenient registration booth. Locate it and register today that you may express your opinion at this year's elections.

Republicans and Democrats will vote for their respective convention delegates at the presidential primary, May 5. Candidates for Congress, the legislature, and other state offices will be on the ballot at the August 25 primary.

UNnless you re-register this year you will be disfranchised as surely as if your citizenship rights were suddenly made mythical. Make a realistic use of your political opinions by qualifying yourself to express them at the elections which will make social, economic and political history this year.

HOME TEAM TIED IN CHAMPIONSHIP GAME ON SUNDAY

Davies Baffles Valley League Champions—Palmini Excels At Bat—De Felippo Is Fielding Star.

Creighton Davies, star right-handed pitching ace of the local team, baffled the Regal Amber sluggers in a high-class manner Sunday afternoon at the Seals' Stadium, allowing the Valley League champions only four scattered hits and sending 11 of the beer nine down by the strike-out route.

Palmini, Petrocchi and Davies excelled at bat. Palmini slammed out four singles in five trips to the plate, while Petrocchi and Davies, two home town lads, each garnered three hits in four times at bat.

When one considers that the home team boys were clipping the horse-hide at a .432 average, against the opposition average of .143, there must have been what is known in baseball terms—"breaks."

As usual, the home club started the fireworks off with a bang in the first inning. De Felippo, first batter up, singled to left field. Carrasco flied to right field. Vasquez walked. Palmini forced Vasquez at second, putting De Felippo on third. Petrocchi doubled to center feld, scoring De Felippo and Palmini. Maloney doubled to center field, scoring Petrocchi. Musante popped to J. Anti, retiring the side. Three hits, three runs, no errors.

In the third inning, Carrasco opened with a three-base clout to right field. Vasquez flied to short left, Carrasco being held at third. Palmini singled to left field, scoring Carrasco. Petrocchi was hit by a pitched ball. Maloney went out on an infield fly, while Musante closed the inning with a grounder to the pitcher. Two hits, one run, no errors.

"Breaks"—take the fifth inning. Vasquez flied to right field. Palmini singled to right field. Palmini was safe at second; that is, to every one's opinion except that of Umpire Wilcox, who called him out. Petrocchi doubled to left field for his second hit of the day. Maloney singled to right field, scoring Petrocchi, but again Umpire Wilcox pulled "a new one for the book." He informed Tagnolia, Regal Amber third baseman, that Petrocchi overstepped third base, Tagnolia called to catcher Ereno for the ball, touched third base—and Umpire Wilcox retired the local team from bat on this decision. Three hits, no runs, two umpire's errors. What a break for the beer lads.

Again, in the ninth inning. Vasques, first up, singled to left field. Palmini singled to center Petrocchi fanned. Maloney at bat, two men on bases, and one out. Maloney lined a bullet shot between short and second. J. Anti reached out his glove, stabbed the ball from the air, doubled Palmini at second, unassisted. Tough luck for our boys again. The box score will tell the tale.

The Daly City Band deserves much praise, and many comments are still pouring in, for their whole-hearted co-operation and colorful showing made at the Seals' Stadium last Sunday afternoon in the interests of the injured semi-pro baseball players benefit fund.

Pioneer in Frontier Mining Work

Election experts are asking this pertinent question:

"How can President Roosevelt lose when such tremendous blocs as that of the United Mine Workers of America, estimated at 1,500,000 votes, are coming over to him?"

Wise heads in the great labor organization threw precedents to the winds in pledging whole-hearted efforts of the nation's coal miners to bring about the re-election of President Roosevelt.

A new civilization is in the making and the workers of the country are determined to be in the foremost of the epochal movement.

Adoption of a resolution supporting the President by the coal miners at a recent convention is in open defiance of a rule of the American Federation of Labor against participation in Presidential campaigns. The action is unparalleled in the history of trades unionism in the United States.

Despite conditions require desperate remedies, acording to the old saying, and that is the way the miners look at it. Realizing it takes funds to conduct a successful campaign the miners voted not only to back the New Deal with their votes, but to contribute from their $2,000,000 treasury to the campaign fund.

John L. Lewis, president of the national union, put the situation in a nutshell in saying:

"The interests in downtown New York are boasting they can raise enough money to elect a Chinaman to the White House.

"It is time for the United Mine Workers and all the people to show these interests that there isn't enough money in this country to buy the Presidency."

That was some challenge to Al Smith's Du Pont-financed Liberty League.

Not even the most rabid of the enemies of President Roosevelt can deny the truth of the characterization of the chief executive as the greatest humanitarian of our time. And this is the way the indorsement resolution speaks of the opposition:

"Against us are the chambers of commerce, the manufacturers' associations, the Liberty League and the representatives of special interests who have exploited the people of this nation for many, many years.

"These forces must be defeated in their unholy purpose to re-establish their destructive rule over the destiny of the American people."

President Lewis explained his organization was not endorsing the Democratic party, but is rising to meet a crisis in the economic and political affairs of the country by allying itself with a great statesman to protect the masses of the people.

The Vancouver Sun had a timely editorial the other day, "Let's Use More Silver," in which was pointed out the expansion of the movement for greater use of silver money. The northern paper wisely states Vancouver might with benefit to the province of British Columbia follow the example of San Francisco, where five dollars' worth of silver is given by banks in part payment of checks. It is also noted that Spokane, which has been built in great measure by the silver output of the Coeur d'Alenes, one leading hotel gives much of its change to guests in the shape of newly washed silver dollars.

British Columbia is vitally interested in silver on account of its mines containing the white metal. It is very obvious, as the Sun says, that every silver dollar placed in circulation in Canada adds just that much to the demand for labor in silver producing mines and, if carried to large proportions, would in appreciable measure restore prosperity in districts which have been stagnant since the depression started and which unhappily have relapsed into inactivity after a brief season of partial sunshine, due to the vagaries of silver quotations.

LESSON SERMON OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Unto thee, O Lord, do I lift up my soul. Shew me thy ways, O Lord; teach me thy paths." These words from Psalms comprise the Golden Text to be used Sunday, February 16, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "Soul." Included among the Scriptural selections will be: "Then one of them, which was a lawyer, asked him a question, tempting him, and saying, Master, which is the great commandment in the law? Jesus said unto him, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment" (Matt. 22: 35-38).

The following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included: "The first demand of this Science is, 'Thou shalt have no other gods before me.' This me is Spirit. Therefore the command means this: Thou shalt have no intelligence, no life, no substance, no truth, no love, but that which is spiritual" (p. 467).

He smiled with cool irony. "Why so theatrical? Hysterics are not in your line, my dear Lilith."

That lowered her voice, but not the knife and ax. She began to edge towards him, with the blades raised ready to strike. Her voice came from her stiffened lips, low and hoarse and deathly calm:

"If you do not go, I will kill you, unless you first kill me."

The smile left his lips. His eyes narrowed. He replied no less quietly:

"You are stark crazy. I'm going. It may be two or three weeks before I can get back. That should be long enough for you to starve into sanity. You'll be glad to welcome me then. Only, how about your father? Does it not sober you to realize it will be your fault if he dies?"

For answer, she took a full step nearer. The look in her eyes daunted him. He slanted sideways, caught up Garth's rifle, and ran across to the bank above the canoe. When, more slowly, she came to the top of the bank, he had the canoe launched and was heaving in the wolfskin knapsack.

He jumped aboard with the rifle and one paddle. As he backed offshore, she ran down to the water's edge and flung his engagement ring at his face. It struck his upjerked forearm and glanced outboard. The ash-cleansed diamond flashed like a bit of blue-white lightning that was instantly quenched in the water.

The canoe swung around and went yawing out upon the mighty expanse of the Mackenzie.

CHAPTER VIII

Woodcraft.

Out of the pit of blackness, Garth's first dimly conscious thoughts were of water. He was still in swimming. . . . No, the water was only on his face. Not rain, nor poured water—something wet sopping his forehead.

He opened his eyes, blinked the daze from them, and found himself gazing up into a pair of sunken blue eyes. They were clouded and dark with misery. Yet with strange suddenness they brightened. At that he realized they were the eyes of Lilith Ramill.

"What's—happened?" he murmured. Even as his lips moved, he remembered. "Huxby—his pistol. Must have—shot me."

"Yes. Dad also."

Garth sought to tense his flaccid muscles, ready to bound up. She laid a restraining hand on his forehead. "Lie still. He went—"

"Went?"

"Right after it. Be quiet, else you may go unconscious again. The bullet cut across the back of your head. All these two days you've lain there in that frightful stupor. I could not wake you up. I felt sure you'd die."

"Stupor—two days?" he muttered. "Concussion—brain."

He made deliberate trial, and found he could move his legs and arms. "Luck—no paralysis. Soon be all right. But—your father? You said, 'father also.' Can't see why. Wolf was rabid only for my claim—not blood mad."

"Of course! The cowardly beast meant only to murder you. But when he fired again, Dad jumped up between."

"Bad?"

"Not if there was a doctor. It's through the shoulder. The coward—to run off with the canoe, instead of shooting himself like a man!"

"Ran off, did he? Thought he had killed your father?"

"No, he said it wasn't serious. All we needed was to take Dad in the canoe and get that man Tobin's medical kit."

"Yet he ran off without you?"

"I made him go. I drove him off, the beastly sneaking coward!"

Garth stared, perplexed. "You did that? Yet he wanted to take your father where he could receive treatment."

She frowned. "He thought you dead. But after I nearly fainted, I pushed against you to get up. I felt you were still alive. I was afraid you'd come to—would move. He would have—finished you. So I—drove him off."

"Leaving yourself and your father marooned here."

The girl stiffened. Her mouth went hard. "Don't fancy I did it for you! It was—it was because I was not going to let him finish his sneak murder. It would have been the same if I'd gone off and let you die. You can see that. You must!"

He smiled up at her frown. "All the more sporting of you. Not half bad, I'd say."

"Oh, but it is bad—frightfully bad! No food—not a thing to give Dad all this time. No chance of getting any for either of you. And now his fever, too. No medicine for it!"

A sudden thought jerked Garth up to a sitting position. He swayed from dizziness. Then his head cleared. He was only rather weak from blood-loss and sore about the back of his head. An exploring hand found a wad of moss, tied upon his wound with a band of plaited grass. He heard the girl murmur:

"I fixed Dad's the same way—ashes and the moss to hold it on. Ashes or soot—I once heard about something like that for cuts."

He pointed to the scattered ashes of the dead fires. "Be quick. Build a big blaze and throw on green wood. That southbound plane! Must signal it. Even if he's aboard, he can't keep the pilot from coming down."

Lilith Ramill's head dropped despondently. "I saw it this morning—way out across the sky. First there was the drone of the motor. Then I saw it—way off. Only, I could do nothing. Yesterday I used your last match. I wanted to boil for Dad the one pinch of tea that's left. A puff of wind blew out the flame. Now there's no hope. He took your rifle too. No fire or food or gun, or any chance of rescue!"

Garth looked around and saw her father tossing in feverish sleep under the shade of a slight brush canopy. He gave the overwrought girl a bantering smile.

"What, merely a matter of fire, medicine, food, and escape? If only you were a boy scout! How about becoming a Campfire Girl? Fetch me a two-foot willow branch the size of your forefinger, a thong, one straight dry stick, and that chunk of dead birch trunk."

A little sand increased the friction of the fire-drill point at the bottom of the shallow hole he made in the block of wood. The dry birch soon began to smoke. Lilith had gathered tinder of dead inner bark. In wide-eyed wonderment, she watched the simple primitive method of fire making.

When Garth stood up beside the crackling flames of the new fire, he found himself stronger than he expected. All shock from his wound had passed during his two days' unconsciousness, and his healthy tissues had already begun to heal.

"Now we're under way," he said. "Next comes medicine. By using the ashes, you gave our wounds sterile dressings. Your father was tuned up to the pink of condition. His wound will heal as rapidly as mine. What little fever he has means nothing. To cool it, crush in his drinking water some of the cranberries from over there along the edge of the muskeg. You might boil willow bark and add a little of the bitter decoction to the cranberry juice."

"Oh, it's good to know he's not sick. But to starve to death!"

Garth pointed to the wild fowl out in the swamp. They were beginning to flock together with the approach of autumn. "How would you like canvas-back or mallard for dinner?"

Her eyes brightened, only to cloud again. "You have no gun."

After looping some thongs to his belt, he went to stack a hollow pile of brush on a forked stub that had broken off from a fallen beech tree. Out in the water, he bobbed under and came up with his head between the forks of the float. The leaves and twigs made a blind from which he could see out without being seen.

He waded, neck deep, up the muskeg stream so slowly that the stub and branches appeared to be an ordinary bunch of driftwood. He allowed a flock of teal to swim by. They were too small to bother with.

When he stepped off over his depth, he began to tread water. By a quiet movement of his hands under the surface, he glided the blind into the midst of a mallard flock. The trick was to grasp a duck's feet and jerk the bird under before it could squawk. He waded back to shore with five dead mallards tied to his belt.

After the meal on roast duck, he set some rabbit snares. He then showed Lilith how to make cords by splitting off strands from peeled spruce roots. While she worked at this, he collected more ducks and hung them over a smudge for smoke curing.

Next came the carving of Eskimo hooks from duck bones. With bait, a catgut leader and a spruce-root line, he began to catch Mackenzie whitefish. Lilith had never seen so beautiful a fresh-water fish, all mother-of-pearl below and frosted silver above.

The newly caught fish proved far better eating than even the best of trout. Mr. Ramill's slight fever gave him a distaste for duck meat and the rabbits that were snared. But he ate his full share and more of the delicious fish.

Besides the cranberries, Lilith gathered black currants and blueberries and mushrooms. More fish were caught than could be eaten fresh. A number were soon on the smoke rack, along with ducks and rabbits. For the present and near future, the question of food had been met. But the subarctic summer had about reached its end. Still more rapidly than before, the nights were becoming longer and blacker.

A cold sleety rainstorm drenched the camp. It brought only temporary discomfort, for Garth kept the fire alive under a slanted heap of spruce boughs. None the less, the storm spurred him to redoubled activity. He knew it to be the forerunner of the autumn blizzards that might now howl down off the snowclad Selwyns at any time.

While Mr. Ramill's slight fever remained, he said little and seemed to take everything as a matter of course. He had fully recovered from the effects of shock even before the fifth day, when the bullet wound through his upper chest began to heal. But with the passing of his feverish condition, the irritability of convalescence jabbed him out of his placid contentment.

"Why are you loafing around here, Garth?" he rasped. "Instead of wasting all this time piling up food, you could have made a canoe and run us down across to that refueling post days ago."

Garth swept his right hand edgewise out across his upturned empty left palm. "No gun—no hides. Dead birch—no bark. No hides, no bark—no canoe."

"Huh! Do you mean to say we'll have to stick here and freeze in your d—d Arctic winter?"

"Growl away, sir," Garth approved. "Sounds good. It means you'll soon be in shape for rafting. As for your question, perhaps you imagine Miss Ramill and I have been heaving that down timber over the bank just for sport."

The millionaire staggered to his feet unaided for the first time since Huxby had shot him down. "A raft! How the devil can you make one if you can't make a canoe? No rope or rawhide thongs to tie the logs together."

Garth supported him over through the spruce thicket to the drop-off of the bank. The wobbly invalid squatted on the brink and stared in surprise. Down the beach, close beside the water, his daughter sat plaiting a great pile of willow withes into a thick line. Before her floated a partly built raft of dead birch tree trunks. The shorter, smaller cross logs were lashed on with spruce root and plaited-willow tielines.

Mr. Ramill's gaze passed over the raft, to peer out across the immense lake-like expanse of the great river.

"You'll Not Have Much Longer to Insult Me."

The water was covered with whitecaps, whipped up by the chill northerly wind.

"Raft! Ugh! It's worse out there than the white water when we shot those rapids."

"There'll be plenty of free bathing for us, but no danger of drowning," Garth replied. "Only trouble, this wind would blow us upstream. We'll have to wait for a shift. The only other chance is that one of the boats may be coming out."

"Boats?"

"The supply steamers of the Hudson's Bay company and other traders, taking out the season's cargoes of furs."

The millionaire grunted his relief: "Ugh—steamers! Almost good as a plane."

"If one comes along, and if we see it in time," Garth qualified. "You are rather farsighted. You might watch for smoke downriver."

"I'll do that. D—n your diddling with any raft! Ten to one, you've already let every steamer slip past. All this time with your nose rubbing those d—d logs!"

Garth went down to tell Lilith that her father was by way of being a well man. He sent her to move the camp to a small opening in the thicket, close behind the grumbler. Fuel for a bonfire had already been heaped up on the beach.

But Garth did not count strongly on sighting any steamer. The boats might have lingered at the far-away Arctic trading posts. Delay meant danger of an early blizzard. He rushed his work on the raft. When dusk came, Lilith went on watch, in place of her father. Garth relieved her at midnight. But neither of them saw any light out on the vast expanse of ghostly gleaming whitecaps.

By another sunset Garth had the raft completed to his satisfaction. He had built a superstructure that raised the footing well above the waterline. Rails guarded against the risk of squall waves washing the still weak millionaire overboard. For sweeps, Garth lashed the paddles to poles made of spruce saplings. He rigged other saplings for mast and yardarm, ready to hoist the blanket as a sail in case of a favorable change in the wind.

"Shift or calm, we'll put off at sunrise," he announced.

Though Mr. Ramill grumbled, he ate his fill of broiled whitefish, and rolled up for the night to fall into the healthy heavy sleep of a convalescent. Lilith again took the first watch.

In the midst of his first sleep, Garth opened his eyes with the instant alert wakefulness of a hunter. The girl's hand was on his forehead.

"Yes?" he asked.

"I—I'm not sure," she murmured. "The wind has gone down. . . . It looks like a star. But it's so low on the water, I thought I'd better call you."

He rolled from the bed of spruce tips and dry moss. A single glance downriver was enough. He jumped to light the prepared bundle of brush at the smudge-fire and leap with it down the bank.

As the heap of fuel on the beach burst into flame he heard the girl's gasping murmur, close behind his shoulder: "It can't—be a—mistake? You're certain—certain that it's really —"

"A steamer," he replied.

"But what if—if they don't—see us? It's night."

"Darker the better, if no fog. They can't miss seeing this fire."

Assured of rescue, she sighed her relief. With that, woman-like, her feminine vanity came suddenly to life. "Oh, but to go among people like this! such a sight!"

Garth turned to eye her in the glare of the upflaring fire. He looked at her worn moccasins and lynxskin leggings, at the crude skirt of moose-calf skin and the tattered upper part of the sports dress. He looked at her dope-smeared face, and at the tight pigtails of the semi-bobbed hair that had once been so frozen in that modish permanent wave. His gray eyes twinkled in the firelight.

"Well, I'd say you're less a sight than when I first met you."

Her eyes did not twinkle. They flashed. "You'll not have much longer to insult me!"

French Acadian Villages Live On in Nova Scotia

Although the Acadians were driven from the famous Land of Evangeline in 1745 their traditions and culture still live on in many a little French village in Nova Scotia that even now is not unlike the Grand Pre of the days when France ruled the new land. Many of them found their way back to their beloved Acadia and others fled to settle in remote parts of what was then a wild country.

Of these French villages one of the quaintest is the little town of Clare where words written a century ago by a traveler still hold true today. This foreign visitor to Clare in 1835 wrote, "The moment a traveler enters Clare the houses, the implements of husbandry, the foreign language, and uniform but peculiar dress of the inhabitants excite his surprise that any township in Nova Scotia should possess such a distinctive character."

A later visitor to Clare found that these French Acadians, in the words of the earlier traveler, "still preserve their language and their customs with peculiar attachments and though their traffic naturally leads them to an intercourse with the English, they never intermarry with them, adopt their manners or move into their villages. This does not arise from an aversion to the English government, but is ascribable rather to habit, national character and their system of education."

Few debts haunt these descendants of the original French settlers of Acadia. Their more progressive English or Scotch neighbors may use the tractor and automobile, but for them the ox drawn plow and the horse suffice. The aura of the romantic land Longfellow wrote about still hangs over their villages.

Fuel Waste Cited

For years owners of industrial plants have known that an uncovered steam pipe or boiler means dollars wasted in fuel bills. The same method of insulation used in such large plants is needed in the home, for an uncovered furnace in the cellar with unprotected pipes leading from it will mean just the same percentage of waste as would occur in a giant foundry or coke furnace. Insulation used for such purposes is easy and economical to apply and is just as important in having an effective heating system.

Sanitary Science

Sanitary science is the science of sanitary conditions and of preserving health, and is accordingly synonymous with hygiene. The term is usually restricted, however, to the methods and apparatus for making and maintaining houses healthy, for removing waste and nuisance by drainage and otherwise, for securing abundance of fresh air and for the exclusion of poisonous gases, such as sewer gas.

Watch Your Posture; Has Vast Influence in Health

"How you feel, how much you get out of life and how long you live depends to a surprising degree on the proper functioning of your vital organs, and their health is largely controlled by your posture—at any rate, improper posture will crowd or displace organs and interfere with functional efficiency. Many mysterious ailments are traceable to this, says Rex Beach in Cosmopolitan. He passes on these tips regarding posture from Dr. Stanley Green, who has worker them out according to the principles of "body mechanics":

Don't sit on the feet. It twists the pelvis, and may eventually produce a postural spinal curve. Sit with the weight on base of pelvis, leaning forward from the hips, knees not crossed, head up.

At the office, don't slump with weight on base of spine or middle of back or with feet elevated. It crowds the heart and lungs, compresses the vertebrae, and may cause eye strain, headache, neuritis, lame back and other ills. Sit well back in chair, weight on the buttocks, head up. If necessary to bend forward, bend at hips—not at neck or waist. Standing with weight on one leg causes a pelvic twist, spinal curvature, and flattening of the arch. Stand with weight on both legs, head erect, feet parallel or slightly turned out.

Toy Railroading Is Rapid Growing Hobby Among Men

Playing with toy railroads is today one of the fastest growing hobbies among men in the United States.

Nearly every large city has its miniature railroad society whose members own elaborate systems ranging in cost from about $30 for small electric lines to $10,000 for real models which run under their own steam over a mile of track, hauling ten tons at 30 miles an hour.—Collier's.

IT WORKED FOR ME

Women should take only liquid laxatives

MORE people could feel fine, be fit and regular, if they would only follow the rule of doctors and hospitals in relieving constipation.

Never take any laxative that is harsh in action. Or one, the dose of which can't be exactly measured. Doctors know the danger if this rule is violated. They use liquid laxatives, and keep reducing the dose until the bowels need no help at all.

Reduced dosage is the secret of aiding Nature in restoring regularity. You must use a little less laxative each time, and that's why it should be a liquid like Syrup Pepsin.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if it doesn't give you absolute relief, if it isn't a joy and comfort in the way it overcomes biliousness due to constipation, your money back.

The Original Milk of Magnesia Wafers

A Grave Mistake for a Mother to Make

GIVING CHILD UNKNOWN REMEDIES WITHOUT ASKING DOCTOR FIRST

GIVING your child a medicine or remedy you don't know all about — without asking your family doctor first — is a bad risk for any mother to take.

Doctors and child authorities say health, and sometimes life itself, depends on this.

So — when you're offered a "bargain" in a remedy for your child; ask your doctor before you buy it. Do this for your child's sake and your own peace of mind.

Ask him particularly about the frequently used "milk of magnesia" — about Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. He will tell you that for over 60 years physicians have endorsed it as SAFE for your child. The kind of remedy you want your child to have.

Remember this when you buy, and say "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia" to your druggist. Comes now, also, in tablets that taste of peppermint, that children like to take.

Safety for You and Yours

NOW, ALSO IN TABLET FORM

You can assist others by refusing to accept a substitute for the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Do this in the interest of yourself and your children — and in the interest of the public in general.

Meeting was called to order by Comrade President Edw. Goldkuhl Sr.

After the usual run of business three eligible men were voted on and initiated into the ranks of the Veteran Firemen's Association of Daly City. The drill team was very good at this initiation. Comrades on the drill team have had very little drilling the past few months. The members initiated were Robert Classen, John Callan and Rudolph Anderson.

Later two more members were voted on and initiated. The two initiated were R. W. Stacy and W. Spreckelmeyer.

This really was the biggest meeting held this last year. Comrade Jim Callan said something about a goat to be used in the initiation and all got a laugh out of this. Comrade William Goldkuhl made some interesting remarks. About this time Comrade Valenti asked the chief musician to play a good old Irish tune and get them singing.

Still ill are Comrades Sombrailo, Peterson, Cameron. Comrade Morris Heskowitz also was not present on account of illness. Comrade Schenk visited Comrade Sombailo and asked the comrades to drop in and see him. Comrade Peterson was reported at the Fort Miley Hospital by Comrade Treasurer A. J. Green. Comrade Chief A. P. Chesney also reported seeing Comrade Sombrailo's son.

After the regular session a buffet was served by the able good Comrade Chef J. Hesslein.

Dad stagged it home alone to burn midnight oil, a habit customary to editors prior to publication day.

COOLING SYSTEM

Cars not equipped with a thermostat in the cooling system should have a radiator cover installed for winter driving.

The motor performs best when the water in the cooling system is just below the boiling point. Also, automotive engineers believe the real cause of excessive cylinder wear around the upper piston rings is corrosion, which is accelerated by low engine temperatures.

HEADLIGHT FILM

Headlight reflectors become dull and coated with film which lessens their efficiency after they have been in use for some time.

This condition can be improved by carefully polishing reflectors with jewelers rouge or lamp black, applied with a piece of cotton or new piece of cotton flannel moistened with alcohol. Pressure should be avoided and rubbing done in an outward direction.

Refusing to pay a code authority assessment, Mrs. D. B. Ormiston, publisher of the News, a weekly paper of Linneus, Mo., defied the NRA and all its works. She said her paper was a family affair and "we don't need any help from General Johnson to run it." The News has never displayed the Blue Eagle, and Mrs. Ormiston says if she had one she would trade it for a bottle of iced tea.

Invention of the cigarette is credited to a British soldier of Egyptian troops fighting Turks in 1832. A caravan bringing pipes and tobacco to the soldiers was attacked, all the pipes being destroyed by a hand grenade. Hungry for a smoke, the soldier thought of rolling some tobacco in a small square of the Indian paper used to wrap powder for his rifle. The idea worked, and a world-wide industry was born.

STRESS NEED OF IMPROVEMENTS

Citizens Hear Plans For Aid From Instructors So As To Meet State Law

program under present conditions. Unusual weather conditions of the locality make it impossible for any organized program to be carried out without a gymnasium.

Mr. Disbrow, who formerly taught at Turlock and Roseville High schools, said that the real value of a physical education program as carried on by his former high schools was impossible here. He particularly stressed the great value derived from corrective work. Boys with crooked spines or poor posture can many times be greatly assisted if taken care of at the proper time.

Mr. Disbrow remarked that the request for a gymnasium was not an unusual or unjustified one. He pointed out the fact that every high school on both sides of the bay region has at least one gymnasium. In our own county Pescadero, Half Moon Bay and San Mateo each have one. Redwood City, Palo Alto and South San Francisco each have two, and Burlingame has three.

Members of the Board of Education then were called upon to express their opinions. Mrs. Jensen, secretary of the board, emphasized the need of a gymnasium from a community recreational standpoint, stressing the need of a place for our young people to spend their leisure time in the evenings.

Mr. Vireno and Mr. Sanders, members of the board, also expressed themselves favorably as to the need of the class rooms and gymnasium.

Mr. Ferguson, principal of the high school, then spoke upon the costs and the m[illegible] of financing the bond issue. The cost to the taxpayer he showed to be only 30 cents a year on a home with an assessed valuation of $500.

Mr. Ferguson also called attention to the extremely low tax rate of the Jefferson Union High School district. The economies of the Board of Education have not only reduced the maintenance costs to a minimum, but they have actually been able to save sufficiently from their yearly funds to build an annex of six class rooms without a cent of extra taxation on the district. Other improvements also have been made lately from savings, two of which are a new well and pumping equipment and a wood working building. However, he explained that the cost of the gymnasium and class rooms would be too great to finance out of savings.

After these talks explaining the needs of the high school. Dr. Callsen called upon members of the audience for their opinions.

Mayor Smith said that everyone knew how he felt about matters that concerned the improvement of the community and that he approved of the issue.

Mr. Augustein, president of the Grammar Schools Trustees, offered some very valuable suggestions derived from his experiences as a result of the recent grammar school election. He, too, favored the bonds.

Mr. Fahey, Mr. Sunderland and Mr. Selmi, all of the city council; Albert Boynton, secretary of the Merchants Association; B. G. Kost, representing the Knights of Columbus; Harry Anderson, representing the Veterans of Foreign Wars; P. L. Peterson of the Colma Chamber of Commerce; Mr. Linden and Ed. Cavagnara all offered suggestions and promised support. The High School Board as well as all of the supporters of the proposed projects were greatly pleased when given assurance by W. E. Pitschke, editor of the Daly City Record, that The Record would support the issue 100 per cent. The value of his assistance during the grammar school campaign was immeasurable, and members of the high school are pleased to know of his support.

At the suggestions of several members present it was decided to hold a mass meeting at the high school on Tuesday, February 25, and Tuesday, March 3, in order to place before the people the worthiness of the project.

Before adjournment a motion was made and passed unanimously endorsing the proposed construction of class rooms and gymnasium for the Jefferson Union High School.

universe, its organization, the human race."

Mrs. B. F. Langworthy, national president, has urged members to turn their attention to the home, to make it the center of joy and happiness for the child, in fact, asked members at the last state convention not to get away from the first objectives of the organization, the home, the school and the child.

HOLD FIRST OFFICIAL DRILL NEW SCHOOLS

On Friday, February 7, Chief Chesney and Assistant Chief Bodien gave the children of the Daly City schools their regular fire drills.

This was the first official drill given since the occupancy of the new schools, but the children had been well drilled by the teachers and everything went along smoothly.

Every school has improved in their time and it is gratifying to the officers of the fire department that every school was emptied in less than one minute. The time and number of pupils follows:

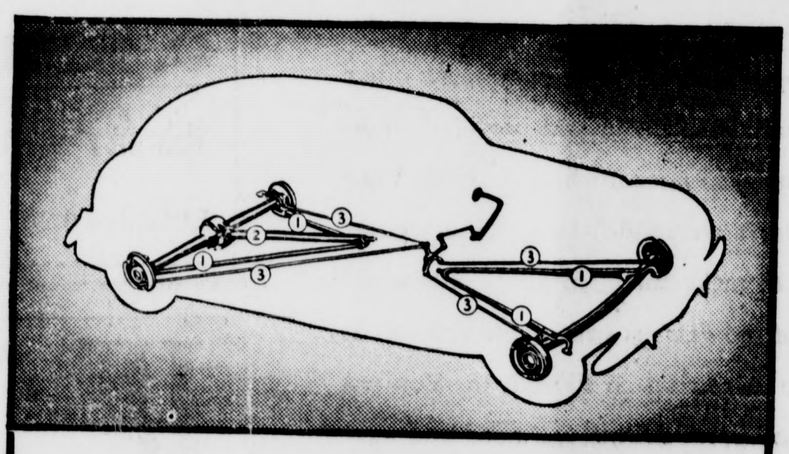
THERE ARE NO SAFER BRAKES MADE
than the Super-Safety Brakes of the 1936 Ford V-8



NO other car in America has the same basic design as the Ford V-8. Because of this design, the Ford could use any type of braking system now in common use. (Diagram at left shows why.)

With the whole field to choose from, Ford stands by mechanically-operated Super-Safety brakes as safest, surest, and most positive for the Ford V-8.

This is the type braking system used on many of America's costliest cars and most racing cars. Because of unique chassis design, Ford can use it to better effect than any other car built today.

All in all, no safer brakes are made than you get with the 1936 Ford V-8. Drive it today—and see for yourself.

FORD PERMANENT WHEELBASE
Radius rods [1] brace the front axle like a pair of giant arms. Radius rods and Torque-tube [2] give triple bracing to the rear axle. This means that the front and rear axles of a Ford car are always held equi-distant—in perfect alignment. On this permanent wheelbase any braking system now in common use could be used. Only with this Ford-type wheelbase, can mechanical, Super-Safety brakes be used to the fullest advantage.

4 INDEPENDENT BRAKE-RODS
Four brake-rods [3] of strong, tempered steel link the pressure of your foot on the pedal with the four big brake-drums on the wheels. They do this positively, surely, under all road conditions. Note especially that no one Ford brake has to depend on the other three. Failure of one—practically impossible—would still leave you three perfectly-operating brakes.

Tear out this chart and check it with the car you are driving now.
